

Dr. André Carvalho is a Brazilian Society of Dermatology (SBD) certified dermatologist based in Porto Alegre, Brazil.

He is the head of Dermatology department at Hospital Moinhos de Vento de Porto Alegre and is responsible for the Psoriasis Ambulatory at the same Hospital.

He also teaches Dermatology at the Moinhos de Vento Medical School in Porto Alegre.

Dr. Carvalho is a member of the board of directors of the International Psoriasis Council (IPC), is a GRAPPA member and a Global Psoriasis Atlas (GPA) regional coordinator, currently being the president of the certification commission of the Brazilian Society of Dermatology (SBD - from 2019 until 2027), and is the current vice-president of SOLAPSO+DI (Sociedade Latinoamericana de Psoríase e Doenças Cutâneas Imunomediadas).

He has published over 50 articles in the field and is a reviewer for several international peer-reviewed journals.

His research focuses on psoriasis, atopic dermatitis and hidradenitis suppurativa, with current emphasis in management of infectious diseases (TB/Dengue) in patients on biologics and JAK inhibitors, definition and adaptation of disease modification and remission/cure in skin immune-mediated diseases and indirect comparisons of targeted treatments for psoriasis with meta-analysis and MAIC, as well as targeted treatment survival curves comparisons and its differences in different populations.