

Born in Diourbel, Senegal, Fatimata Ly is the Head of the Dermatology Department at the Institute of Social Hygiene in Dakar. She's also a Professor of Dermatology at the University Cheikh Anta Diop of Dakar. Having studied medicine at University Cheikh Anta Diop of Dakar and Dermatology in Africa and Europe, she specialises in Dermatology, with a keen interest in Dermatoses associated with Skin Bleaching, psoriasis and infectious diseases. Systemic diseases. Dermatoses in black Skin is her speciality; She also lectures regularly at the University Cheikh Anta Diop in Dakar, where she also supports postgraduate students with their own theses. Widely renowned, a high-flyer and hard worker, she regularly attends and speaks at conferences both in Senegal and abroad where she pushes for the advance in medical services in Africa.

Fatimata Ly is one of the founders of AIIDA, an Association fighting against the use of skin-bleaching products. They have succeeded in making the issue of skin-bleaching become a public health issue in Senegal through various conference and other awareness-raising activities.

Fatimata Ly is one of the founders of WAGP (West African Group of Psoriasis) and National coordinator of International Network of Psoriasis.

She is author and coauthor of more 50 articles published in international scientific literature, she has done scientific communication in international, regional and national congress since 1996.